MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIRMAN

By the time you read this, preparations will be well under way for our Convention at the Honiley Court Hotel, Honiley, Warwickshire. If there are any members, within reasonable driving distance and who have never attended a Convention before and who have any doubts about attending, can I implore you to come along. It doesn't matter that you haven't booked, we will be only too glad to greet you. I remember when I was a tyro collector of BWI stamps (some say I still am), I was very reticent to come to the Convention. I need not have worried. I have attended every Convention for the last 14 years and have enjoyed each one. Even if you feel that you are a very new collector, there are plenty of members around to help and encourage you in your interests. Come along, we will welcome you with open arms.

On another subject: the Study Circle relies on its members to ensure its smooth running. The present Committee put an enormous amount of effort into making sure that events, such as the Convention, are successful. However, we need more of our members to come forward to help. In particular, we need people who are competent on computers and are on the Internet to assist in various small ways. Please, if you think you can help, contact one of the Committee. There is no obligation if you do; just find out what is required and maybe you can help what is, after all, your Study Circle. I am sure that those that can help, will.

CAYMAN ISLANDS

EAST END POST OFFICE - A FOLLOW UP

BY GRAHAM BOOTH

I can add very little to Kevin Darcy's article about the early years except to say that by 1927 Captain Jennett must have been quite an old man and his memory may have been at fault; alternatively he may have had a different understanding of what we would call foreign mail. It is clear that in 1901 there was no inland mail and that East End dealt exclusively with mail that went by sea, what little there was. There is on file in the Cayman Archives a letter that went from East End to Georgetown to the Commissioner in June 1907 "forwarded by mail per sloop Primrose", and it is most unlikely that the small cat boats and canoes that plied along the southern coast of Grand Cayman carried mail for foreign destinations and did not carry domestic mail as well.

The closure of the East End Post office in early 1908 is well documented. However there has been no mention in the literature before now that Commissioner Hirst also closed the Boddentown office in July 1907. What appears to have happened, though there is some speculation involved, is that Yorke Slader acting as Commissioner, established an inland post in 1906, based on a design laid out by Sanguinetti before his death. For reasons that are not at all clear Hirst closed it down, replacing it with his own scheme based on the wagon, after a six month gap when again there was no internal post except for that which was carried by sea. This scheme, with the Rural Post hand stamps that accompanied it, is again well documented. The Boddentown office was reopened in 1908, but it is not clear what happened at East End. In late 1908 Hirst ordered identical cancellers for Georgetown and Boddentown which were delivered in January 1909, but there was nothing for East End. In May 1909 Hirst wrote to Cornwell Watler, the Collector at East End saying that he wanted to re-open the office along the same lines that existed at Boddentown, and offered him the job as Postmaster. It is not clear, but it is likely that Watler turned down the offer and that there was no office at East End until Watler accepted an offer from Hutchings after Hirst's death. This does not mean that there were no postal facilities. Clearly the local police constable sold stamps and collected and delivered letters using the Rural Post hand stamp, but it is debateable whether letters were regarded as being in the hands of the official post office until they reached Boddentown, which is why most East End Rural Post covers also carry a Boddentown cancel on the front as opposed to a transit stamp on the rear. (The same is true of the West Bay mail until it reached Georgetown.)

Hutchings, although only acting Commissioner, completely reorganised the local delivery service in 1913, and fortunately the entire correspondence setting it up still exists. He added a delivery at North Side, appointed Watler at East End, Estelle Connor at Boddentown and Hubert Ebanks at West Bay as sub-postmasters. In addition he wrote to the police constables giving them instructions to hand in all their postal equipment including the Rural Post hand stamps, and asked them to write to him confirming that they had done this. As a consequence it is no surprise that these cancels cease in 1913/14. What is a surprise is that the East End mark resurfaces in 1916, with at least 4 extant letters, all addressed to E N McLaughlin. McLaughlin was an interesting character. He was the local school teacher at East End, and judging by his letters highly intelligent and articulate. He was an elected member of the Vestry, and the first person, as far as I am aware, to style himself with the modern day tag of M L A Member of the Legislative Assembly. Hutchings made an enemy out of him almost as soon as he arrived on the island.

He appointed Arthur Bodden's daughter Amy to be Clerk to the Commissioner, and another daughter, Rhoda, to replace her as Assistant Postmistress, without advertising the positions as being vacant. McLaughlin wanted a job for his own daughter. The situation was not helped by McLaughlin having an extremely inaccurate, if very modern, understanding of how the colonial system worked. In practice there was an administrator who made all the decisions which were later rubber stamped by the Vestry, with one important exception, control of finances and taxation. McLaughlin took the view of a modern parliamentarian that the executive branch was there to implement the decisions of the Assembly. For instance he severely criticised Hutchings for sending £10,000 worth of stamps that he found in an unlocked cupboard in an unlocked room in Hirst's residence to the Stamp Commissioner in Jamaica for safe keeping. In McLaughlin's view he had no authority to take such action without the approval of the Vestry - a position at the time which was quite untenable. Another issue was E S Parsons who had immediately assumed responsibility after Hirst's death. McLaughlin was furious that a payment of £35 had been made to Parsons as an honorarium for his services without the approval of the Assembly, though he would have been on stronger grounds if he had focussed on the void in the constitutional arrangements for the Islands which said nothing about what happened if the Commissioner was incapacitated for any reason, a problem which was later resolved by the creation of a dormant commission which could be activated at any time, which was given to the Medical Officer, Dr. Overton. McLaughlin died at the end of the decade, I think in 1919.

The sudden emergence of the East End Rural Post hand stamp in 1916 after a gap of two years has to raise questions about its legitimacy, especially as there are only four letters extant, and all are addressed to McLaughlin. The condition of the stamp in 1916 has deteriorated considerably, but this may have been the result of storage in tropical conditions rather than use. The covers were rather carelessly created, are in somewhat worse condition than the other Rural Post covers addressed to known philatelic addresses, and are addressed in different hands. As the East End circular date stamp seems to have disappeared from view about this time, quite legitimately the Rural Post hand stamp may have been redeemed from storage to replace the circular stamp which had been lost or damaged. Unfortunately the Archives provide no help in understanding what happened; why the Rural Post stamp disappeared as quickly as it had appeared, and why the postal authorities appear to have found it unnecessary to have any East End cancel from 1916 to the late 1920's. One can only presume that letters which originated at East End were not cancelled until they reached Boddentown.

CAYMAN ISLANDS

DO ANY COMMERCIAL MP2s EXIST?

BY JOHN BYL

In June 1908 the Commissioner of the Cayman Islands, Mr. S.S. Hirst, introduced a new local postal rate of ¼d for postcards and each two ounces of printed matter. In so doing he was probably following the example of some neighbouring West Indies islands. A supply of ¼d adhesives had been ordered earlier in the year and was placed on sale on 30th June. In spite of a notice dated 10th July that they were to be sold only over the counter of a Cayman Islands post office, and were to be used solely for internal postage, large numbers found their way to overseas dealers. The outflow of these stamps from the Islands increased when permission was given for them to be used on overseas mail as the supply of ½d stamps had run out. In practice ¼d stamps were used to replace other denominations as well and in many cases accounted for the total postage. Covers so franked were often philatelic and it is therefore no surprise that they can be found quite easily today.

On the 1st October the Postmistress, Miss G.A. Parsons, resigned. She had been involved in the production of five surcharge provisionals and one manuscript provisional (MP1) during the previous thirteen months. This had attracted much criticism and it is likely that she was not too unhappy to hand over her responsibilities to a new Postmaster, Mr W.G. McCausland, and to become his assistant.

Mr McCausland's start at Georgetown was not auspicious. Within two or three days of taking up his post the supply of ¼d stamps was finally exhausted. This left him in a dilemma. He had inherited a specific instruction arising from an official enquiry into the philatelic/financial manipulations involving the surcharges mentioned above. It was "to refrain from provisionals generally". However, he could reasonably argue that having been in office for so short a time, he could hardly be called to account for the lack of ¼d stamps. In any case he had no option but to disregard this edict and therefore decided to resort to a manuscript franking (MP2). As indicated above, this method had already been used by Miss Parsons and it had, inevitably, resulted in its quota of covers specially prepared for philatelists and for those hoping to make money from this latest provisional. During October three more types of Manuscript Provisional were produced and are listed in Gibbons as MP3, MP4 and MP5. These are rare and do not concern us here, but MP2 is not uncommon and most Caymans collectors will have one or more examples.

In theory the postcard to be sent by post would be taken to Georgetown post office where, on payment of $\frac{1}{4}$ d, Mr McCausland put it in an envelope, sealed it, and endorsed it "Pd $\frac{1}{4}$ d/WGMC" usually in two lines. For the first few days magenta ink was used and thereafter a pink-red ink. The endorsement was then cancelled by the Georgetown Type 4 c.d.s. (fig.1) and the cover put in the postal system to be sent via the daily delivery service which had been started in Georgetown in June of that year. The few destined for outside the town were delivered by the Rural Post which had been initiated in early 1907. This method of dealing with postcards would have ensured that no letter could be posted for a $\frac{1}{4}$ d instead of the local letter rate of $\frac{1}{2}$ d. The Manuscript Provisional period started on 4th October and ended on 3rd November with the arrival of a fresh supply of $\frac{1}{4}$ d stamps. However, the last known date for a surviving MP2 is 27th October.

In the previous paragraph I have described the procedure which was probably intended and which may indeed have taken place for the first few days. As we shall see, what actually happened was rather different.

Over many years I have collected details of 76 MP2s and am sure that others are still to be found. Although the numbers of new examples that come to light diminish year by year it would probably be a futile exercise to try to estimate the total number that survive. It is revealing to list the known examples by date.

In addition to those in the table there are two with unreadable dates. A question mark indicates a doubt regarding the date, usually because it is difficult to read from an illustration. Examples described as dated OC 4 are sometimes in fact OC 14. The '1' of '14' can show poorly and occasionally only the very top tip of the '1' is visible. To be OC 4 (and OC 6) the endorsement must be in magenta.

An examination of the addresses shows that 53 are written by Mr. McCausland (fig.2), 8 by another person (fig.3) and 7 by other people. Catalogue descriptions or partial illustrations of a further 8 are insufficient to reveal the identity of the writer. Of the 8 MP2s written by another person 4 have the word "Merchant" under the address, another "Registrar" and a sixth "Notary Public". One possibility is that this person may have been acting as an agent for residents who could not get to the post office in opening hours because they had their own business to look after during that time, or for some other reason. This can be no more than speculation, but any other idea needs to explain why these covers are all dated the 14th or 16th.

We need to ask why so many residents of Georgetown should take to sending postcards to each other in mid-October 1908 when they could easily (and more cheaply) have delivered them by hand in that small town. If they had bought the cards for themselves, why take them to the post office and pay for them to be delivered by post? Further there are cases where individual MP2s have gone to married couples on the same date and also where, in at least one case, an individual has received three examples each postmarked on a different date. This suggests a pattern where the recipients were producing 'different' examples for philatelic purposes rather than receiving commercial mail which, in any event, would have been rare in 1908. Also we must bear in mind that only three surviving postcards are known from the following four years franked with ¼d stamps after these became available in early November 1908. Finally, we must not totally discount the possibility that some of the MP2s never did contain a card and that the Postmaster merely obliged by handing over an endorsed and postmarked envelope after adding the name and address. The only reasonable explanation is that many of the residents of the town would have learned from the 1907-8 surcharges that such curious philatelic items were worth having. The Postmaster would also have been aware of this (possibly warned by Miss Parsons) and the likely demand this provisional would engender. This had happened on a small scale during the previous May when MP1 was produced. At that time at least eleven examples were prepared for the philatelic market. Only two survive, which along with the commercial examples, make up the dozen or so MP1s in existence today. The fact that only two of the eleven or more contrived covers are left today suggests that the surviving numbers of MP1s and MP2s represent but a fraction of those produced.

The demand for these covers would have become even more apparent to Mr. McCausland after the first few days. Although he had an assistant he was a busy man; over 37,000 items of foreign mail alone were dispatched or received at Georgetown post office in the year 1908-9. Indeed it became necessary to take over a larger room as post office and also to acquire a second room (the Commissioner's office) for use as a sorting room.

The production of a provisional would have taken appreciably longer than selling a stamp, and on some days Mr. McCausland would have found it difficult to find the time to deal with such numbers of non-urgent mail. Lastly, it is necessary to explain why so many MP2s are in such fine condition and have the flap still stuck down.

To account for the above, the procedure involved in producing the MP2s was almost certainly very different from that suggested earlier. During the first few days the number of provisional covers was modest, but as demand grew it is likely that he needed to devise another more convenient method. On the 14th and 16th when perhaps he had more time, he prepared a large number of envelopes with his endorsement and also postmarked them, thus creating many MP2s with one or other of these dates. As all the addresses were "Georgetown, Grand Cayman" he may well have added the address at the same time. No MP2s are known for certain dated between the 6th & 13th. During this period all he had to do when asked for a provisional was to jot down the customer's name and ask him to call back in a few days i.e. after the batch of covers had been prepared, in order to pick up the provisional. Those who called at the post office after the envelopes had been prepared could be quickly dealt with as only the name needed to be added. Evidence supporting this shows on two covers where the name is written using a pen with a broader nib than that used for the address. This would suggest that the name and the address were written at different times. Miss Parsons lent a hand with one of them (fig.4) for it is one of the few provisionals where the endorsement is hers. The number of surviving provisionals with the flap still stuck down suggests that many may never have contained a card, as has already been suggested. A final piece of evidence to suggest that most, if not all, of the MP2s to Georgetown are philatelic is the very fine condition of so many. This indicates that they may never have gone through the post but merely handed over the post office counter to be well looked after by the recipients; residents would have been aware of the importance of condition to collectors.

It can never be certain that the scenario described above is what actually took place, nor are we likely to know after 95 years. Nevertheless, it does account for the peculiarities of these covers.

Before taking a look at the likely commercial examples it is necessary to examine two suggestions that have been put forward regarding these covers. The first is that the majority of MP2s did not contain cards as the envelopes were too small. These envelopes measure 6" by 3½". I have a postcard dated OC 7 1908 addressed to a postcard collector and have no reason to believe it is other than normal size. Its dimensions are 5½" by just under 3½". It would easily fit into an envelope, allow the flap to be stuck down, and equally easily be extracted.

The second suggestion was that the envelope contained a message such as "a parcel is ready for collection at the post office", the message being written on a piece of paper. With 60 or so surviving MP2s by Mr McCausland, plus those survivors not yet come to light, plus an almost certainly much larger number which have not survived, there would have been an impressive number of parcels awaiting collection! But whatever the message was, only three cards franked with a single ¼d stamp are known dated during the two to three years after the arrival of fresh supply of this denomination at the beginning of November 1908. None bear a message from the post office. Either the postal authorities had abruptly ceased to advise customers of a waiting parcel or send any other message, or the above suggestion is unlikely to be correct.

To sum up: an MP2 is very probably philatelic, in the sense that it was produced in order to obtain an example of the provisional rather than a card, if it shows most or all of the following characteristics:-

1. The address is written by Mr. McCausland or 'A.N.Other'.
2. The covers bears a Georgetown address.
3. It is dated 14th or 16th October or, very probably the 4th or 6th.
4. It is in fine condition.
5. The flap has not been opened.

Commercial MP2s

Having covered the background of the production of these provisionals it is now possible to examine the likely contenders for being commercial examples. Of the 76 known MP2s, 61 have been dealt with. It is impossible to reach firm conclusions regarding 8 of the other 15 as only the endorsement shows in the illustrations I have of them. However, all 8 are cancelled on the 16th with the postmark directly over the endorsement (see below for significance) which would suggest they also are philatelic.

This leaves 7 MP2s as possible commercial examples. Of these 6 are to Cayman Brac. They are addressed in three different hands, none of them the same as those used on the covers to Georgetown. Unfortunately, I have had the opportunity to examine only one (fig.5) but from illustrations, four at least seem to be in far from the usual fine condition; the one shown has a third of the back missing where it was roughly opened. The Mrs. Mott Trille to whom it was addressed was the wife of the doctor on Cayman Brac. He did not last long due to lack of patients. The covers to Cayman Brac share the peculiarity that, while the cancels on the prepared covers to Georgetown are invariably directly over the endorsement, four of these have the c.d.s. to the left hand side or below. This suggests that they were endorsed and cancelled when the senders took the cards to the post office i.e. at a different time from Mr. McCausland's "mass production". Taking all the evidence into consideration it is likely that some, perhaps all, of these covers to Cayman Brac are commercial.

We are now left with only one MP2 (fig. 6) to consider. It is dated the 27th October, the last known date. The envelope is a light brown colour and is not in fine condition, having a filing crease, one or two wrinkles and a few tone spots. It is addressed to Mrs. McIntosh, not one of the 'usual suspects'. It is addressed to Boddentown, unique for this provisional, and in a script different from that on any of the other MP2s. Finally, the flap has been opened. This one therefore has all the qualifications for being a commercial MP2, which it almost certainly is.

GRENADA1965 2c PROVISIONAL*By D. C. Ford

Adding to the observations on the 2c Grenada, given in the December Bulletin No. 191, I was advised by a friend in Grenada of the appearance of the provisional and under date of 24 Jan 66, (Figure 1) he sent me a couple of sheets for my collection. (Figure 2 A & 2 B). A little later I managed to acquire a further cover dated 19 Feb 66, (Figure 3).

Of additional interest, is the fact that on one of the sheets, (Figure 2A) stamps 39 and 40 are very weakly overprinted. On the second sheet (Figure 2B), stamp No. 39 the 2 has almost disappeared and on 40 a weaker overprint than on the first sheet.

The first cover has the stamps bearing cds's, plus a ball-point line through each stamp. The second cover has the cds's only. This former cover answers Andy Soutar's request for a view of a pen cancelled cover.

For the record the detail of the sheet make-up given in the December 2001 Bulletin was inverted. A close examination of my sheets confirms this. As well, stamp 39 is a second type, making 37 type 1 and 13 type II for the sheet make-up, and not as previously advised.

37 Type 1, 13 Type II

Table has been reversed in printing in the December 2001 Bulletin No. 191.

My cover dated 24 January 66 (Figure 1) bears a strip of four stamps types 11-11-1-11. These are respectively, row and stamp number 2/2, 2/3, 2/4, 2/5. Interestingly these would help confirm the relative stamp placings, even if full sheets were not readily available.

At the time I was a member of the A. P. S. and recall a serious article on the subject of the Grenada 2c, shortly after the issue. As a result of many moves around the West Indies I no longer have the article. However, the author was firmly of the opinion that the postmaster's letter informing that the stamp was principally for revenue purposes, was generated by the stamp dealers when they found they could not obtain supplies of this issue. In effect, they sought to undermine the issue when it became apparent that they could not make a profit from it.

My own conclusion is that this stamp is a postage and revenue stamp and should receive appropriate stamp catalogue status, and not an indifferent footnote.

Ed. note: Charles Freeland has informed me that the above article is by Johnson, reference APS Vol. 80/3 p171-2.

JAMAICA

HIGHWAY TRAVELLING POST OFFICES

BY STEVE JARVIS & BOB SWARBRICK

Introduction.

Tom Foster drafted a chapter of a proposed second volume to the Postal History of Jamaica, in 1971, concerning the Highway Travelling Post offices in Jamaica. These T.P.O.s operated during the 1960s and a series of hand stamp markings were utilised. Although a number of notable collectors have copies of this draft chapter (indeed a copy exists in the BWISC library) we are not aware of it having been formally published. What appears to be a master copy (as the maps are pen and ink, in colour) was inherited from the late Michael Vokins with a few additional pages of corrections.

Prompted by Bob Swarbrick, the following article seeks to resurrect Tom's paper and enhance it with the help of other collectors.

- It must be remembered that at the time Tom researched his paper, there was great reliance on tracing of post marks and free-hand drawing, which inevitably led to inaccuracies. (Tom's paper did not illustrate all marks)
- There is a strong possibility that the date range of the strikes can now be extended
- The numbering classification used by Tom was confusing e.g. his type Type HTP04 (the style of handstamp) could have 'T.P.O. 2' in the heading!

We therefore present an edited version of Tom's paper, supplemented with information and images from the collections of the authors and Derek Sutcliffe.

Foster Introduction

In the late 1950's, in an attempt to effect certain badly needed economies and increase efficiency, the Jamaica Post Office enlisted the co-operation of British postal experts to organise a working study of the postal services and administration, their recommendations resulting in a series of Travelling Post Offices being established from 1961 onwards, which were intended to operate between several of the larger centres of population. These T.P.O.'s picked up and conveyed closed mail between agencies and main offices and did a certain amount of sorting on each journey, especially forward sorting to offices and agencies lying immediately beyond the various terminal points. Each van was equipped with a letter box, into which letters could be posted, when the van had halted in a village and after the mail had closed. None of the units offered a counter service to the public. Five Travelling Post Offices were organised, the details and postal markings used by them being as follows:-

The Routes

Tom Foster identified 5 routes:

- 1 Mandeville – Savannah La Mar and return.
- 2 Kingston – St. Ann's Bay and return.
- 3 Montego Bay – St. Ann's Bay and Return
- 4 Corporate Area of Kingston and St Andrew
- 5 Kingston scheme

These route numbers will be utilised for the prime classification of markings with a suffix letter applied for each variation of handstamp identified on the route.

The EKD / LKD are presented as two dates the first being Foster's, the second being mine to-date.

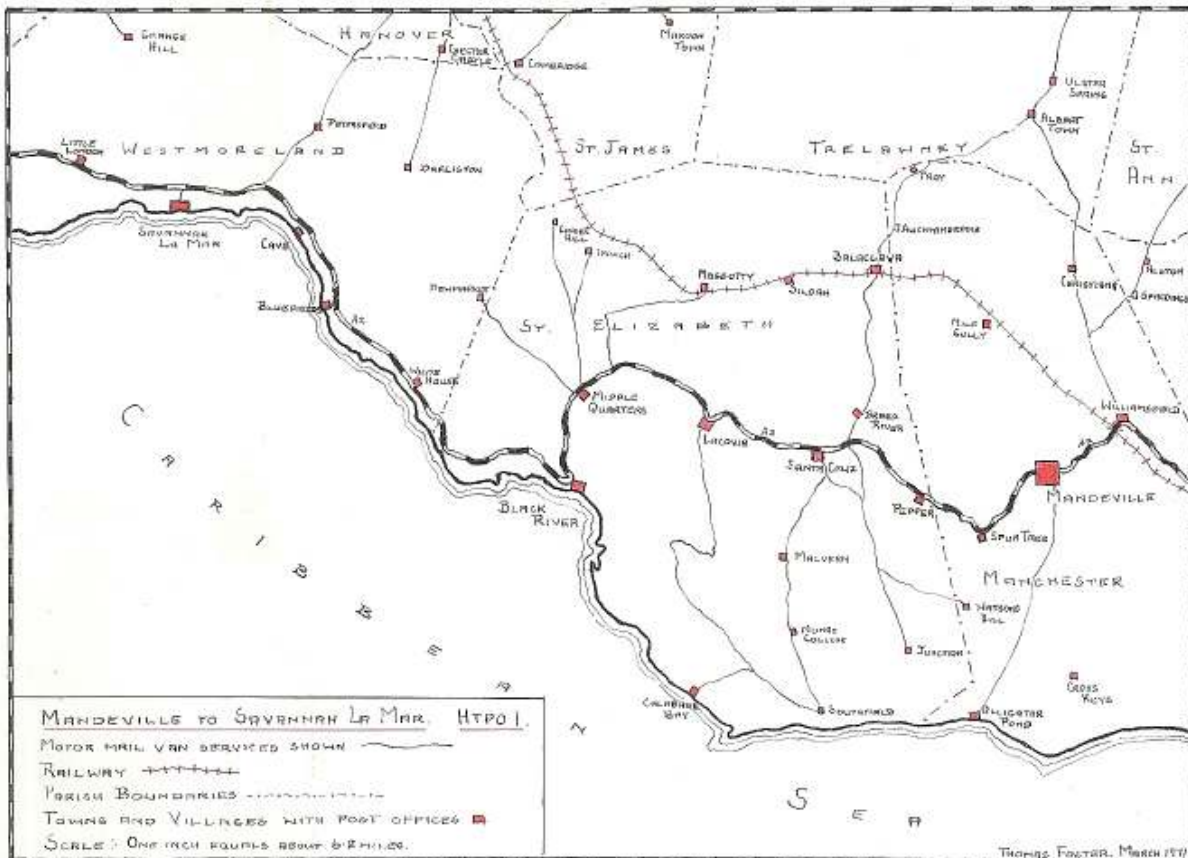

Ironically, all five travelling post offices were withdrawn from service with effect, from May 14th 1966, the official reason given being "in the interests of efficiency and economy"!

HTPO1 - Mandeville – Savannah La Mar and Return.

This service began on 1st June 1961 and consisted of a large modern mail van of steel construction, with a compartment for mail sorting and another of big storage capacity for carrying sealed bags, staffed by two postmen, Grade "A".

The T.P.O. operated on the main A2 road between the termini, picking up and delivering closed mails from and to the Kingston G.P.O., and open mail including registered, from offices and agencies en route. The staff sorted mail for offices directly beyond Savannah La Mar and Mandeville in order to expedite forward despatch from those points. The van was returned to Kingston from Mandeville and during the journey, sorted mail for the eighteen post offices of the Kingston Corporate Area (The Kingston Corporate Area comprises the parish and City of Kingston and a large part of the surrounding parish of St. Andrew, usually called Lower St. Andrew. The offices referred to are the main offices of the eighteen Kingston Postal Districts established on 1st February 1958. See Appendix "B").

Letters posted at offices and agencies after the mail had closed could be posted in the letter box provided on the van and were date-stamped by the sorter. Evidence of the practice is seldom found and all markings of this unit are scarce. Three successive date stamps, were employed, all of the Temporary Rubber type and struck in purple ink: -

HTPO2 - Kingston – St. Ann's Bay and Return.

This unit commenced operations on 2nd April 1962 using the same equipment and establishment as Highway T.P.O.1. It was operated in a similar manner and served all the offices and small agencies along the main A1 road from Kingston through Spanish Town to St. Ann's Bay. In its later years it assisted in clearing mail from offices of the corporate area of Kingston and for this additional duty, often used a smaller van.

Four rubber datestamps were employed, the first being uncommon, whilst the other three are very common and usually found on Kingston mail. All were struck in purple ink.

HTPO3 - Montego Bay – St. Ann's Bay and Return

This unit also began operations on 2nd April 1962 with the same equipment and establishment, and worked the main A1 road between the places mentioned. One of its main tasks was the forward sorting of mail destined for outstations of Montego Bay and offices and agencies on secondary routes beyond that town.

Seven types of temporary rubber datestamp were used and struck in purple ink, most if not all of them being very scarce and rarely seen.

Four days after the earliest date of usage recorded for this mark, a group of collectors who were visiting Montego Bay Post Office to study the van service system, noticed the error in an example of the dater shown to them. The Postmaster at Kingston ordered the offending dater to be removed from service and a replacement dater obtained. Favour strikes exist dated 13th November, normal postal usage on earlier dates are very rare.

HTPO4 - Corporate Area of Kingston and St Andrew

This was an experimental service which did not commence until 25th March 1963. It was operated with a smaller type mail van and was manned in the morning by only one Grade "A" postman, in its capacity of exchanging closed mails between the offices of Halfway Tree, Cross Roads, Allman Town, Franklin Town, Vineyard Town and Windward Road, in both directions.

In the afternoon, it took on a staff of three postmen and proceeded to clear street letter boxes in the corporate area beyond the inner belt of the G.P.O., boxes with heavy postings being especially selected. This system was inaugurated in order to limit overtime hours being worked, the letters being postmarked and sorted on a 48 compartment frame during the operation. Four rubber daters were employed, struck in purple ink.

The bulletin is published on our web site (www.bwisc.org) in Adobe pdf format about a month ahead of the printed copy being received by members, this version is in colour (where colour originals have been submitted to the editor).

If any paid up member wants access to this restricted part of our web site, so that they may download a copy, e-mail the editor on info@bwisc.org and I will provide the address and log in details.

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO

FOR THE RECORD

BY D. C. FORD

From time to time the tyro will comment on stamps used philatelically. Perhaps the following will add to the history of postage stamp usage, of a rate which is over the published maximum rate, yet paid the correct postage, as interpreted by me and the Postmistress at the time.

On 1 November 1966 Dr. Eric Gairy, the Prime Minister of Grenada, toyed with joining Trinidad and Tobago on a Unitary State Platform. Grenada as part of the Eastern Caribbean Currency group was using E. C. C. banknotes. During the period, as a result of the political uncertainty, there was a shortage of E. C. C. banknotes in Grenada and the local bank there asked its Head Office in Trinidad to send them some notes to enable paper currency to be available for local use. (At the time the E. C. C. notes and those of Trinidad were of equal value.)

I was directed to send a quantity of notes to Grenada. These were in sealed packs as issued by the printers, 1,000 notes per bundle, of varying denominations. Now it was convenient to wrap two bundles for each package, of which there were ten packages in all.

All was well until on reaching the Post Office I discovered that the weight exceeded the maximum weight for airmail, which I recall was one kilo. After explaining to the Postmistress that it was not possible to split the currency sealed bundles, there was the problem of calculating the rate for posting each package. I suggested that she extended the rate similar to the rate charged for the previous rate under one kilo. Fortunately I was persuasive enough to get an agreement to this.

My friend in Grenada informed me that the portion of the wrapper that I have was the only example to survive whole, with the stamps undamaged. The stamps total T.T.$51.35. I was happy to take his word for it on receiving the item, a copy of which is here displayed. The cancel is somewhat indistinct, but it is Port of Spain 7 Nov 1966.

Later Grenada reverted to using E. C. C. notes and nothing was heard further of this little interlude. However I am still happy at having had the opportunity of making a little postage stamp history, which was not philatelic!!!

AUCTION UPDATEBY CHARLES FREELAND*Shreves 27 June

This sale was certainly the highlight of the quarter and may prove to be the highlight of the year. 451 choice lots of Virgin Islands postal history and of Grenada classic philately were bitterly fought over. Yours truly was one of many phone bidders and this was the first time I have been on the phone for more than a few lots - a tiring experience it is, though time flies by. The two collections were unparalleled in their field, each compiled by discriminating collectors who are also experienced judges and so well aware of how to compile an impressive exhibit. Dan Walker's collection of Grenada to 1908 was almost as complete as you could achieve for a BWI country, and it justly achieved many top awards. The Virgin Islands is a tremendous challenge for the postal historian and the absence of any quantity of stamped early covers makes it very difficult to present in a positive manner, but Peter McCann managed to assemble a formidable array of rare and interesting material. As described in the catalogue, each collection had its fair share of what is euphemistically termed "preserved" covers. The repairs, however, had been expertly done and this ensured prices that rarely reflected that the item had been repaired.

The Virgin Islands was sold first and this went through relatively fast because many estimates were too high and there was little competitive bidding. The total of the posted prices was $85k compared with lower estimates of almost $100k (lesson for sellers: let the auction house decide the estimates; if they are too low, there may be a few bargains but there will be many more where bidding frenzy takes prices above their level).

The first "big" item was the large size Tortola of 1787, which went for $7,250 (all prices exclude the 10% premium). The italic Tortola of 1798 was I thought fully priced at $2,000, and so were some of the early 1800 marks, which attracted interest perhaps because they included relatively few from the well-known Walters correspondence. But there were bargains among the large sizes of the two-line Tortola in the 1840s, which post-date the Walters correspondence so are rarely seen. The GB 1d pair cancelled A13 was I thought expensive at $5,250 for an average strike and the early stamped covers sold well, especially the first keyplate franking of 1884 at $2,900. Here again though, the prices were mostly way below their estimates. Later on, many lots were going at not much more than half lower estimate, with the exception of the most attractive markings, such as the provisional uses of the crowned circles and the TRD covers.

If the Virgin Islands found willing buyers, the sale really took off with Grenada, the 328 lots taking almost four hours to find a home for a total of $520k. From the outset there was a macho bidder, represented by Colin Fraser, who eventually bought about 70% of the overall value, an astonishing percentage in today's competitive markets - but not so surprising when the same person was seen bidding for a Rembrandt the following week! However, it left many frustrated buyers scrambling for the gems he did not need. Throughout the sale there were record prices, starting with the better preadhesives such as the unique italic straightline Grenada and the two line Ship letter at $6,250 each, the Carriacous at $4,500 (the straightline) and $3,250 (the cds) and the two best crowned circles at $3,500 each. The GB used were no cheaper, headed by the 1/- cover at $10,000. The first stamp, the lovely 1d blue green ex Dale, but without gum, went for $5,500 and the Rowland Hill 6d cancelled for $9,500. Later on there were two highpoints, the bisects that fetched very high prices on piece plus $14,000 for each of the two covers, and the amazing assortment of "Postage" manuscripts that sold for a total of $108,000, including $37,500 for the "A" cover. I was hopeful that the pace would slacken and my patience rewarded when the classics were over, but bargains continued to be few to the end.

Shreves proved what can be achieved by skilful marketing, including London viewing that several BWISC members were able to take advantage of, though some of the Grenada collectors may now wonder whether it was worth their trouble.

Harmers London 8 July

The "Koh-i-Nor" specimen collection might not merit a mention in this column but for its inclusion of a number of specimens in "reconstructed" blocks of four. The collector, a European apparently, had sought out pairs and strips (by no means easy to come by) and had "rejoined" them with great care and precision to form visually striking blocks. There was no evidence that the pairs had originally been se-tenant but they appeared almost perfectly aligned and the colours also seemed to match very well, a testimony to the very fresh quality of the material. Some experts turned up their nose at their artificial treatment but philately is a visual hobby and it would be a challenge to find two pairs of any specimen in the condition exhibited here. The hammer prices for the blocks did not seem outrageous to me and there were also a number of rare plate flaws among the single specimens.

Upcoming events

Three highlights in October to look forward to. On 11th David Druett will hold a live Pennymead sale at the Bonnington Hotel in London featuring selected elements of Swetland Antigua, Walker Grenada, Oliver Leeward Is, a "Yorkshire Collector's" St Vincent classics and McCann Virgin Is postal history. The Grenada and Virgin Is are the more specialised parts of the two collections sold at Shreves. Mike Oliver's Leeward Is sounds like the highlight, with lovely essay and proof material, specialised Sexagenaries, small keyplates galore and fine postal history including stationery. David says he will have the lots on view at Leamington between mid-morning on Saturday and early Sunday.

Also on 11th, in Ridgewood NJ, Phoebe MacGillivray will hold another Victoria Stamp Company sale at which there will as usual be plenty of enticing BWI items including a fine Bermuda collection.

The third event in October, as my last column foreshadowed, is the sale at Spink of the Leuhusen Bermuda on 29 October followed by the Frazer BWI on the 30th. David Parsons kindly let me take a peek at the Leuhusen and I can confirm that it is a collection of great depth including many items with Tucker or Ulrich provenance. There are two Perots, a marvellous selection of provisionals on cover, headed by the Moncrieff cover, a large range of stamped and unstamped covers, keyplates galore and plenty of specialised material such as essays and proofs of the Docks and GV period in particular. I was surprised to find that the quality is quite variable, inevitable perhaps with such a large accumulation, but it means there will be something there for every purse.
